

“Saskatchewan International: Our Oil and Gas Sector & Abroad”

When one thinks of Canadian oil, Alberta immediately comes to mind as the nation’s provider of “black gold”. Did you know, however, Saskatchewan actually provides about 20% of all Canada’s oil production, second only to our neighbouring province of the west? In 2011, Saskatchewan’s oil production was 157.7 million barrels, with a sale value of approximately $12.7 billion. And with this province’s growing status as a global exporter of assorted energy resources, our oil & gas reserves are starting to attract customers around the world. Whose attention do we now have? What challenges are involved in extracting our oil & gas and delivering it to them? What are Saskatchewan’s best strategies in managing our commodity internationally?

Join us as Eric Anderson, Saskatchewan resource consultant and host of Rawlco Radio’s Prosperity Saskatchewan, hosts a full-day event that will lead us through the universe of international oil and gas - and Saskatchewan’s role in it. This event will also feature executive-level guest speakers from high profile oil & gas companies operating in the province, including a special presentation from the United States Consul-General in Calgary.

All U of S faculty and students as well as members from the Saskatoon community, particularly those with an interest in international business and the oil and gas industry, are welcome to attend.
